HOW DID CATS GET DOMESTICATED?

FIRST CONTACT WITH HUMANS

There is evidence indicating that humans lived alongside cats nearly 10,000 years ago in some parts of the middle east.

Cats began making themselves at home around human agricultural settlements, taking advantage of rodents and food scraps nearby.

LIVING ALONGSIDE HUMANS

Cats mostly lived outdoors, and natural selection favored cats who were more tame and able to cohabit with humans to gain access to food.

This relationship eventually led to the evolution of domestic cats as we know them today.

MODERN INDOOR CATS

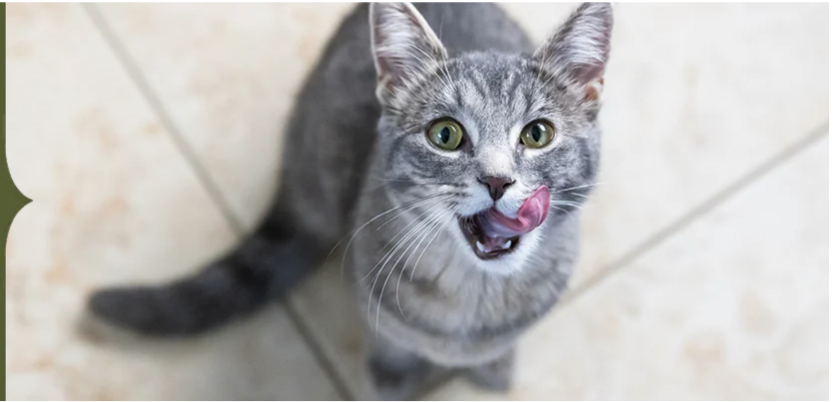

The 20th century brought new technology that allowed cats to live comfortably indoors with humans, like litter boxes and cat food.

Despite living more indoors, cats are still natural hunters and require a diet high in animal protein – like ACANA cat food!
