▼ Properties

Bigarade Orange has the compound Limonene to help stressed skin recover and look great. It keeps inflammation and germs at bay while also repelling bugs.

▼ Scent and benefits

The oil may remind you of your favorite perfume, as this scent features in many beauty and housecleaning products thanks to it strong, clean smell. The sharp, citrus note falls between an orange and a grapefruit without losing its sweet finish.

This oil helps kill germs, increases your circulation, stimulates your skin and helps you recover. It can also help bring a higher vibration and sense of positivity to any space.

▼ How to use it

Add two drops of Bigarade Orange essential oil to a homemade surface cleaner for clean counters, tables, and more. Use it in a homemade shampoo to help relieve dandruff or dry scalp. Make a topical oil with our Baobab carrier oil to help protect your skin from pollutants and recover damage.

▼ Safety guidelines

This oil is for external use only. Please consult your physician or an aromatherapist before using this oil on anyone under 5 years of age. Avoid using this oil on your lips, nostrils, or near your eyes.

No more than two drops should be used in a dilution of water or carrier oil. We at Origio Botanicals urge you to do a skin patch test with any new oil to check for reactions or allergies before you use this oil regularly.

To do a skin patch test, simply take a small amount of diluted essential oil and apply it to the inside of your elbow and cover the spot with a bandaid. Then, wait at least two minutes to see if you experience a reaction such as irritation, itchiness or redness. Any of these mean you may have an allergy.
