Who We Are

IRISS is a non-profit networking organization dedicated to advancing Implementation of Regulatory Information and Submission Standards for life sciences globally. We bring together industry, regulators, vendors, and others to collaborate for the mutual benefit of advancing the future of regulatory operations and public health.

Better Together

Our members benefit from access to recent developments, insights, and expertise across important topic areas. Each of our seven topic groups is led by a recognized expert in that space. Each topic group meets virtually once per month to share recent developments, insights, and expertise.
