Flamenco News

Extract from The Flamenco Triangle article

Arguably the most famous flamenco restaurant in Málaga and conveniently located in the city Centre, this comfortably sized welcoming place has the additional advantage of being child friendly. This is shown not only by the varied menu but also because the owner, a mother herself, ensures that flamenco performances are sufficiently early for children to enjoy, and the professional performers and staff alike are happy to see the children express themselves to the music, and even support them.

This is no tourist flamenco but fully authentic. Both musicians and dancers performed at such an excellent level that I felt torn between giving them and the excellent food my attention. Fluent English, Dutch and Spanish are spoken here and it's a popular place so best to book in advance if you want to visit at peak hours or peak season.
