Welcome to

DRAGONFLY DESIGNS

create • connect • celebrate | EST.2005

I was born and raised in the vibrant San Francisco Bay Area, surrounded by creative, strong women. After leaving a career in banking to stay at home with my children, I was excited for a new chapter. I was pursuing a degree in social work when a simple craft project with my daughters changed everything! I fell in love with the art of jewelry making, and launched Dragonfly Designs from my dining room table in 2005. No one was more surprised than me that I became an entrepreneur. The joy of connecting adults and children to their inner artist has fueled my passion to keep going, innovating, and growing as an owner. My four children, Giana, Bryn, Sabine and Jake, have all grown up in the business and are valuable contributors and amazing artists in their own right. My husband, Mark has been with me every step of the way, offering his steadfast support through the hills and valleys of running a small business.

Dragonfly Designs champions those who want to make a living by teaching their unique art to others. We have assembled an amazing team from across the globe in a variety of mediums like painting, embroidery, cartooning, and textiles. Our mission is to cultivate a welcoming, diverse community where our clients of all ages are inspired to make authentic connections to their own personal creativity and to each other.

We offer 100% live online classes, DIY kits, and virtual workplace events, specializing in private team building for local and international companies. To this day, when I see a busy mom, a corporate executive or a shy third-grader participate in one of our art experiences and I see their faces light up as they make something with their hands, I know what we offer has incredible, meaningful value.

We like to think of ourselves as a community of artists, makers and creatives supporting one another! I personally invite you to join us, take some time for yourself and create something beautiful.

Warmly,
Stacee
