
Extinction for B'klyn Dinosaur BBQ

This beloved Brooklyn restaurant is going the way of the dinosaur.

Dinosaur Bar-B-Que will be closing its doors at its Union Street location this spring after 15 years in the spot.

"It is with a heavy heart that we announce the closure of our beloved Brooklyn store later this spring," the restaurant said in a statement posted to Instagram.

The restaurant noted that its lease has ended, and the building will now be demolished to make way for new apartments.

"Dinosaur Bar-B-Que Brooklyn has been more than just a restaurant. It's been a place for friends, families, first dates, celebrations, and plenty of unforgettable nights in Gowanus," their Facebook post read.

"But what really made this place special wasn't just the building. It was the people," the statement continued. "And this isn't goodbye forever. You can still find us in Harlem and Upstate."

The chain still has locations in Harlem, Syracuse, Rochester, Troy and Buffalo. Brooke Steinberg
