Happy Friday!

As Labor Day has come and gone, signaling the shift from summer to fall, and with the return of students to school, our dedicated tax and audit departments here at Sweeney Conrad are hard at work, ensuring we meet those upcoming 9/15 and 10/15 deadlines. It is a busy time around the office! To aid us in improving our compliance procedures this year, our firm has been actively incorporating a lean six-sigma approach into our processes. Therefore, I thought it would be fitting to kick off this week's edition of Five Minute Friday by sharing an article on optimizing business operations through the lean methodology. Additionally, as we bid farewell to summer, it's timely to share an article on how you can leverage your children's summer job earnings to create Roth IRAs. And last but not least, we have an article that serves as your comprehensive guide to everything you need to know about the Washington State Fair in Puyallup.

Wishing you a productive and enjoyable fall season!

Surprise! Your Kid's Summer Job May Qualify Them for Their First Roth IRA

Your children's summer job can help them gain valuable skills and earn a paycheck. But if you want your child to have financial success over the long term, it's important to teach them about saving and investing as soon as they start earning money. A Roth IRA gives them an opportunity to start growing that nest egg. Read more here.
