

Red Rocks By Rail

Canyon Spirit introduces luxurious excursions across the Southwest.

THE American Southwest has captivated travelers since the Gilded Age, when railroad magnates ventured west from Eastern cities to chart new routes through untamed landscapes. They returned home with tales of vast horizons, sculpted red rock formations, and a newfound sense of freedom in the open desert air. That same ethos of discovery has inspired Canyon Spirit, a new luxury rail experience from the visionaries behind Rocky Mountaineer.

Much like its Canadian counterpart, Canyon Spirit's iconic navy-and-gold rail carriages are designed for immersion. Expansive panoramic windows maximize the views of this enchanting region—desert hoodoos, sandstone arches, and sunlit cliffs, some exclusively visible to those traveling by train.

The all-inclusive one- and two-night rail journeys—which operate by daylight only—begin in Denver, where guests can watch a baseball game at Coors Field, or visit one of the city's 150 pubs and breweries. From there, the route winds toward Glenwood Springs, a picturesque town carved by the Colorado River.

Take a restorative dip in the natural hot springs fed by Yampah Spring's mineral waters—more than 3.5 million fresh gallons each day. After a restful night's sleep at an exceptional nearby hotel, the train glides west to Moab, home to Arches National Park, where over 2,000 geological marvels, including the famed Delicate Arch, dot the landscape. Off-road excursions by Jeep or ATV promise an exhilarating closeup of this wild beauty. Guests on the two-night rail journey continue on to Salt Lake City's Great Salt Lake, the largest saline lake in the Western Hemisphere and a vital habitat for millions of migratory birds.

Whichever itinerary you choose, every detail onboard the Signature experience is curated for comfort and connection to place. Expect world-class hospitality, regionally inspired meals, and seat-side service paired with top-shelf beverages and gourmet snacks. Recline in plush chairs surrounded by panoramic glass-domed windows, step out to the open-air viewing area to take in the landscape, and listen as your Hosts—historians, storytellers, and concierges—tell tales of the region.

Opt for the Premier upgrade for added indulgence: more space, exclusive dining and cocktails, an expanded service team, and additional outdoor viewing areas. For those eager to experience some of Mother Nature's most awe-inspiring work—without the planning that comes with a road trip—you're on the right track with Canyon Spirit. — AMY ROBERTS

➔ Train of Thought. Enter OFFER M29306 on the website found on the back cover to take in the Southwest in a new and wondrous way, or call or email us for more.

Above: Canyon Spirit cuts through Utah's Red Canyon.