PASSINGS

ROSALYN KRANTZLER O'CHERONY

Courtesy of Northeastern Illinois University

Rosalyn Krantzler O'Cherony '61 MA, '70 PhD, Evanston, Dec. 11, at age 94.

Ms. O'Cherony taught Spanish at Northeastern Illinois University for more than 20 years as a professor and, later, head of the school's foreign languages department.

Ms. O'Cherony served as the assistant to the U.S. State Department's cultural attaché in Cuba. In Havana she met and married Domingo O'Cherony, a Cuban pediatrician, and the couple eventually relocated to Chicago to escape Cuba's political instability.

She earned her master's and doctorate in Spanish at Northwestern. Ms. O'Cherony shared a National Endowment for the Humanities grant for improving foreign language instruction in urban schools.

She is survived by two daughters, Diane and Frances; sisters Ruth and Jeannette; three grandchildren; and one great-grandson
