It's Easy to Enjoy Summer Sports Activities while Camping in your Teardrop Trailer

If "small" immediately comes to mind when you think about teardrop trailer camping, you might miss some of the best things about teardrop campers. Not only do they look cool with their modern design and are easy to maneuver, but you have lots of room for your fishing, biking, and water sports gear. And, since Colorado Teardrop trailers are designed to get you off-road, you'll be able to enjoy your summer sports in more out-of-the-way camping spots.

Lots of Space for Your Sporting Gear

The size and shape of a teardrop can be deceiving for people who've never seen one up close. There is PLENTY of space to bring along your gear. You can load your extra gear and "toys" into the trailer cabin and not worry about overpacking. Musical instruments? Yep. There's room for that too.

And, if you're more of a yard games person, you'll still have space for your cornhole boards, ladder golf, bocce balls and more!

Your kayak and paddleboard can find a good home on the roof rack of your teardrop trailer. If you want to bring the bikes, most people choose to attach their bike rack to the standard 2" receiver on the back of the trailer frame. And you'll still have space for your fishing gear.

If you're the type of camper that never misses a workout, you can read more about taking your training with you here.

Find Yourself a Quiet Out of the Way Spot

Because a Colorado Teardrop Trailer is built to be taken off-road, you'll be much better able to find those off-the-beaten-path spots for getting away from it all. Quiet biking trails, quiet fishing holes and even that secluded pond. So many larger RVs just can't get to these spots. And a Colorado Teardrop isn't a "pavement princess" that falls apart as soon as things get rough. So, you'll be better able to find your favorite spots for your favorite camping sports.

We've heard from many teardrop trailer owners who camp near a storied, secluded fishing hole or bike trail because they could get there in their teardrop easily.

Don't Forget the Kid Stuff

If you're camping with kids, you'll need a variety of non-screen-related activities to keep them entertained, too. And our many camping families report that their teardrop trailer has plenty of space for the kid gear, toys and more.

Rain Plan

Rained out? Don't sweat it. Since your teardrop trailer queen-sized bed can convert into benches with a table, you can wait out any rain delay with a game of Uno! or Sorry! While technically not a sport, you'll have lots of room for games – and making great memories, too! Summer in a Colorado Teardrop camper trailer means never having to say 'no' to your favorite camping sports – or your favorite spots. Bring your summer sporting gear and more AND still have the off-road maneuverability to explore more places and find more adventure.
