

Get served with a smile

'You've been served'.

They're words nobody wants to hear. Being sued is no joke. It's one of the most stressful things you'll ever have to cope with.

And as more and more groundless claims are being filed every day, if you haven't already been on the sharp end of a suit, you're lucky.

Stress and sleepless nights

Once you've gotten over the shock of having those papers shoved into your hands, you're in for some sleepless nights.

What if you're found liable? How much will you have to pay in damages? Will it put you out of business? And if it doesn't, will your reputation be ruined?

Even if you've been wrongfully charged and the claim is groundless – you'll still have to defend yourself. And when it's your living and your name at stake, you need an expert.

Thing is, attorneys don't come cheap. If the case drags on you could be looking at five or even six figures.

Sure, you could borrow from the bank, from family or friends. Maybe dig into your pension or savings. You could even release equity in your home.

All it takes is a few clicks

But what if we told you there's a way to avoid having to do that? And that all it takes is a few clicks of your mouse, or a phone call?

Because taking out a general liability policy with InsuranceBee really is that simple.

As little as $500 a year will get you coverage for claims arising from personal and bodily injury to a client and damage to their property.

Don't panic and freak out

So, if you're sued – even if you're not at fault or the lawsuit is baseless– the carrier will hire an attorney to defend you.

When you're facing a lawsuit you'll still need emotional support from your family and friends - maybe even therapy - to get you through.

But if you're served and you have general liability insurance, you won't panic and freak out. You'll keep calm and call your carrier.
