

PLAYING LIKE A GIRL: THE HOUSE THAT ROB BUILT

IS NOW ON PBS!

The Family That Plays Together Stays Together!

From the director and producer of PRAY: THE STORY OF PATRICK PEYTON comes the inspiring tale of one coach, one team, and generations of pioneering female athletes.

Before there was a Caitlin Clark, there were decades of dedication and struggle to build the women's game.

Meet Rob Selvig, who, for 38 years, led the Lady Griz of the University of Montana, from obscurity in the early days of women's college basketball, to Division I status. Against the odds, these athletes had faith in their coach and each other.

This Emmy-winning film has just landed on PBS. It's airing on PBS affiliate stations around the country (check local listings), and also streaming from PBS.org, the PBS YouTube channel, and (for subscribers) the PBS Documentaries channel on Amazon Prime Video.

Click here for all you need to know about when and where to watch. Tune in, stream, enjoy -- and share the film with everyone you know!

PLAYING LIKE A GIRL
THE HOUSE THAT ROB BUILT

Family Theater Productions, 7201 Sunset Blvd, Hollywood, CA 90046, 323-874-6633

Unsubscribe Manage preferences

Copyright © 2024, All rights reserved.