Walmart,

For more than 50 years, HOBY (Hugh O'Brian Youth) has inspired young people to make a difference and become catalysts for positive change in their home, school, workplace, and community. As America's foremost youth leadership organization, HOBY has a long history of motivating young people to develop into outstanding leaders.

HOBY was founded by Hugh O'Brian in 1958 as a nonprofit organization whose mission was to inspire a global community of youth and volunteers to a life dedicated to leadership, service, and innovation. From 1958 to 1967, leadership seminars only took place in Los Angeles for sophomores from California. In 1968, seminars included international as well as national participants, and the leadership seminars moved to major cities across the United States on an annual basis.

By 1998, HOBY celebrated its 40th Anniversary and launched a new initiative, Leadership for Service, challenging all HOBY ambassadors to commit to 100 hours of community service. Hugh's belief in the potential of every human being and his commitment to helping the youth of the world become major contributors to society is his legacy. Today more than 470,000 HOBY alumni are better people, making a difference in the lives of others.

At HOBY Georgia, high school sophomores build their leadership potential through a three day seminar based on three leadership perspectives: Personal, Group and Societal. During the seminar, the ambassadors interact with local community leaders through panels, presentations and group discussions about real-world issues. They also conduct a community service project to put leadership skills into action. Our ambassadors are introduced to others from across the state in the hopes that they will inspire one another to become better leaders in their schools and communities. After the seminar, we challenge our alumni to complete 100 hours of community service within the next year as a way to put their passion and newly built leadership skills into action.

Sincerely,
Allie Sweeney and Hilary Mills
